

Pastor of First Congregational Church Installed

People from all over the North Country came to Littleton Sunday, December 12th, to celebrate the ministry of Rev. W. David Weddington at his installation service as pastor and teacher at the First Congregational Church of Littleton. Celebration and singing filled the sanctuary as Rev. Weddington was welcomed by the congregation, the North County Association, the New Hampshire Conference of the United Church of Christ, and pastors from area churches.

Rev. Weddington and his wife Wilma come to the First Congregational Church from the New Ark United Church of Christ, Newark, Delaware, where he was minister for six years. Prior to this he served churches in North Carolina and the Pacific Northwest. He was ordained by the United Church of Christ in the fall of 1999.

Rev. Weddington was born and raised in North Carolina. He graduated with honors in religious studies and German from the University of North Carolina-Charlotte in 1974, worked for two years on a Masters of Fine Arts degree at UNC-Chapel Hill and then worked as an actor for 15 years. In 1989, answering a call to ministry, he enrolled in Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia, from which he graduated magna cum laude in 1994.

Rev. Weddington is a multi-talented man who loves being a minister and enjoys playing the guitar, fiddle and mandolin. He likes listening as people share their stories and welcomes the opportunity to work with people of all ages both within a church setting and the wider community.

"There are so many ways we, in the church, can express our gratitude for God's boundless love – ministries of healing, hospitality, advocacy and reconciliation," Rev. Weddington says. "Most churches are doing more than they realize. It's deeply satisfying for the people of the church...to celebrate together the ministries they already have; and it's very exciting, at a time of new beginnings, to start to imagine the new thing God is about to do among us."

Main Street Camera Now Feeding Live Shots to Manchester

LITTLETON – If you have watched WMUR-TV recently, you might have noticed a familiar sight during its news broadcasts, our own award-winning Main Street.

After a long process and a lot of hard work from a few individuals, the camera that was installed in September 2009 is finally streaming live shots to the WMUR studios in Manchester.

The reason for the delay began when there was no signal from the camera, located near the Jax Jr. Cinemas, to Cannon Mountain, which was supposed to feed the signal back to WMUR's studios.

George Kirk, project coordinator, said Roger Rosendahl, director of Engineering at WMUR, and Bob Walker, Supervisor of Satellite News Gathering and Electronic News Gathering at the station, along with John Peters, director of technology for SAU 84, spent a long time working on a solution and recently expanded the firewall at WMUR in Manchester to allow a feed from a slingbox to get through. A slingbox is a router that hooks to a TV, cable box or satellite and can direct the signal to a computer or laptop as long as there is a high-speed Internet connection.

"This camera is a fantastic way to showcase Littleton and put us on the map throughout the region," said Littleton Area Chamber of Commerce (LACC) Executive Director Chad Stearns. "Another great example of why Littleton is the ideal place to live, work, play and retire."

The camera was paid for by donations from Littleton Main Street, Inc., LACC, Littleton Industrial Development Corporation, the Eames family and Woodsville Guaranty Savings Bank. Notchnet, JA Corey, Littleton schools and LATV-Channel 2 provided materials, space, labor and knowledge in-kind.

"This has been a great community collaboration with volunteers and donors from all sectors coming together to support this project," said Stearns.

Since being fixed, WMUR has used shots of Main Street almost daily.

"Thank you to SAU 84 for its help and John Peters. He was always there working on finding a solution," said Kirk.

Kirk noted WMUR still wants to put a six-foot microwave antenna on Littleton High School, which sits higher up than Main Street and would direct the signal to Cannon. He said there is no timeline for that happening.

As has been the case from the day the camera was installed, people can go online at HYPER-LINK "http://www.littletonareachamber.com/camera.php" and check out the live camera feed for themselves.

The Littleton Area Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit organization that strives to work with both members and the community on social and economic development. For more information, please contact the Littleton Area Chamber of Commerce at 603-444-6561 or at www.littletonareachamber.com.

Throughout 2011 the Arts Alliance will be working with its members and with partners around the state on collaborative programming celebrating the Weeks Act Centennial.

The Weeks Act note cards will be used for a variety of Arts Alliance communications. Artwork may include drawings, paintings, photographs, fabric art, sculpture, etc. Artists whose work is chosen will receive a one-year artist's membership to the Arts Alliance, which includes a link to the web Artists Gallery. ### N.H. WAR PRICE-RATIONING BOARDS TWO YEARS OLD THIS MONTH

The following is a part of a talk given by Russell R. Larmon, Director of the Office of Price Administration in New Hampshire, over radio station WMUR in Manchester on Thursday, January 6, 1944.

Good Afternoon:

One evening a few weeks ago, John McIntyre, the Board Operations Executive in our office, and I, after attending a meeting of Board Chairmen and Price Panel Members in Littleton, drove through the darkness to North Woodstock on the chance that we would find some board members working late at the office in Lincoln.

As we drove down the main street, here and there a glimmer of light appeared against the dark of the surrounding hills, but as we came to the center we saw two lighted windows, on the second floor of The Parker-Young building. We knew that the board office was there. We knew, too, what we would find when we went up the stairs. There would be some men working at the desks who had labored all day long at their usual occupations, unless they had been carrying on some other civic responsibility, or, had been working at the board office—and we found them there—10 of them.

During two hours of discussion of mutual problems we received not a single complaint from them in spite of the fact that we knew that they had some cause for making them. Not once did a single person indicate that he deserved praise or sympathy or martyrdom. Yet for one or two years, most of these men had spent portions of days and evenings—far into the night—weighing the requests of members of their community for gasoline and fuel oil and groceries and meats and fats, tires, bicycles, rubber boots and sugar, and weighed their relative merits under the regulations which generally apply to all people in the United States, or they were endeavoring to protect the public or merchants on the pricing program. They had been subject to criticism, much of it unfounded—or, if well-founded, the action criticized was usually not properly their responsibility. They had had to turn down old friends; they had had to penalize neighbors; they had done this in addition to their usual occupations and the cares of their family responsibilities.

As we left the board office late in the evening and started back for Concord, the faces of these men passed before my mind's eye, for they were fine faces and I wished that some able portrait painter had been able to record them on canvas as an example of the backbone of democratic America. Since that time the lighted windows on the main street of Lincoln have symbolized for me the self-sacrificing contribution which board members in New Hampshire are making to their communities.

I use this incident only as a symbol for, if time permitted, the same fundamental description could be given of each one of our 32 boards, the description varying only in detail, locale or degree. There are nearly 500 members of these war price and rationing boards in New Hampshire. Few of these persons will ever receive the thanks which are richly due them. I have often said—and I repeat it here—that the thanks offered them should not come from me but should come from the people in the communities which they serve.

THE ARMED FORCES

Mrs. Catherine Reardon of 7 Cedar Street, Gloucester, Mass., mother of Pat Reardon, has been notified by Washington that her son, who was first reported as missing in action over Germany on a bombing raid on November 13, is now held as a prisoner of war in Germany. Lincoln sport fans will recall Pat as the popular little boxer, who came to Lincoln with the C. C. C.'s and afterwards was employed in the Pulp Mill, until he entered the Service. He had been on several raids over Germany before his plane was shot down. His many friends in Lincoln will be glad to learn that he has a good chance of getting back home.

VOL. III FEBRUARY, 1944 NO. 7

December 21, 1943

Parker-Young Co.:

Just to let you know I am now discharged from the Army. While at home I received the Christmas gift, so I am returning it thinking it will be a help to some boy in Service at the present time.

I sincerely thank you for the gift I received in camp in 1942, also for the Pycologs. I enjoyed every one.

Thanking you for all,

Preston G. Boyce
R.F.D. 1, Campton, N.H.

December 27, 1943

Mr. Preston G. Boyce R. F. D. 1
Campton, N. H. Dear Mr. Boyce:

I received your letter of December 21, together with the Christmas money order which you wanted to return to us. We again enclose the money order, and feel that you "are entitled to it and should be perfectly happy to accept it. We sent a similar gift to every one of our people in the Services, and your taking it will deprive no one else that we know of.

I admire and respect the attitude shown in your letter. Your desire to share with some one who may need the gift more than you is one more proof that the spirit which made this country great is still strong. Perhaps you know that I believe very strongly that we should all try to look after ourselves in a fair and energetic way, and then try to help the other fellow when we can.

I thank you for writing us as you did, and hope that you will want to come back to work for us in due time. With best wishes for your health and success in the New Year, I am

Very sincerely yours,
Martin A. Brown
Treasurer and General Manager

SANTA VISITS DANNY

At the "girls' " Christmas tree at the Manufacturing Office, after the quarter

presents, along with the usual yearly "digs" had been disposed of, Santa Claus really got down to business and presented Dan Walsh in behalf of The Parker-Young Company Superintendents and Foremen with a beautiful wrist watch. To say that Dan was surprised would be putting it mildly.

There is a story connected with the present that should be told. For years Dan, along with Joe Temple, Archie Strickland and Cy Stewart, had in a small way poked fun at wrist watches and the wearers thereof. During late years the last three mentioned did wear them secretly, but Dan went them one better on receiving his. He strapped it on, proudly displayed it to all and has worn it ever since. Dan now says, in regard to his former opinion of wrist watches, that we all must change with the times, and if anything can be proven useful he's for it whether it be wrist watches or a collapsible paper machine.

The boys now are waiting for Joe and Archie to get up enough nerve to wear theirs in public. That will be the day!

THANK YOU

To the Superintendents, Foremen and Employees of The Parker-Young Company:

I tried to thank the Foremen and Superintendents when they presented me with the beautiful wrist watch, but somehow or other I just couldn't find suitable words to express my appreciation and thanks.

During the many years that we have worked together, the things that you and all the employees have accomplished are all entitled to a place in the history of The Parker-Young Company. You and your crews of the various departments have made it possible for the Company to carry on the business. I am sure that the officers, directors and the people who have money invested in the Company appreciate your willingness and loyalty especially during trying times. It was a pleasure for me to have worked with you, and I hope that our close relations will continue and that we will all work together so that we can make

Lincoln a place where we can live happily and make a comfortable living for ourselves and our families just as we have in the past. Daniel J. Walsh

BROWNIES

On December 15 the Brownies had their Christmas party. We gave a play and spoke pieces. We had many visitors to our party, among them Mr. Perham, superintendent of schools. We had a nice Christmas tree and there were gifts for all. Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and coca cola were served.

At the first meeting after Christmas five of us who have reached the age of ten had special instructions preparing us to fly away to the Girl Scouts. Jean Blanchard, Carol Ann Lynch, Eva Theriault, Marion Hadley and Margery Addison are now Girl Scouts.

Our first meeting for this year was held January 12. We were all present. We are

A MODERN FABLE BASED ON FACT

Once upon a time, there was a farmer who sold two chickens. With the proceeds, he bought two shirts.

So the farmer had two shirts and a city man had two chickens.

Then along came the New Deal, and told the farmer he should get more money for his chickens by making them scarcer—he must not raise so many, and then he would get more income.

The New Deal also told the working man in the city that he must work fewer hours and get more for making fewer shirts. That, of course, caused shirts to cost more.

Then the farmer brought one chicken to market. He got as much money for it as he had previously gotten for two chickens. He felt fine. He wanted to buy some shirts, but he found that shirts had also doubled in price. So he got one shirt.

Now the farmer had one shirt, and the city man had one chicken. This, boys and girls, is called "the more abundant life."
